YOUNG BANDITS

Three Youngsters Stole Horses and Took Flight.

Horse stealing of the old dime novel style is almost a lost art even in the wild and woolly west, but three youngsters, Ignacio Fraga, Ernest Marks and Herbert Blanche, the two former hailing from the wild slopes of Punchbowl and the other from the swamps of Kakaako, gave a theatrical exhibition on Monday of dare deviltry which landed them in jail.

On Monday night the youngsters invaded a corral just below Queen Emma Hall and stole two horses belonging to Police Officer Hart. The animals were not the finest types of equine architecture and they had points upon which Hart's brother officers declare they can hang their helmets. Nevertheless, the animals struck the fancy of the young rascals. Another horse of like construction was found in a lot below the ruins of old Kaumakapili church. Gathering it in, the trio mounted and started on a journey toward Pearl Harbor. The boys travelled to Alea where they disposed of one horse to a Japanese for $2. The youth showed that they were light-fingered as well, for two fine bridles were stolen at the plantation. Yesterday all three were located at Pearl City and arrested by the Deputy Sheriff of the district. They were brought to town yesterday forenoon and locked up in the Police Station. The three horses were recovered and restored to their owners.

FLINTS AGAIN IN THE COURTS

The Big Harbor Police Captain
Now Asks for a Divorce.

Harry W. Flint, captain of the harbor police, has filed suit in the circuit court for a divorce from Nina I. Flint, on grounds which, he says, have caused him mental anguish. Captain Flint says in his petition that they were married on January 4, 1898, and lived together until yesterday as husband and wife. He charges, his wife with intemperance, and says she has threatened his life. On July 19, 1901, the libellee brought suit for divorce in the circuit court, charging him with indecent conduct and cruelty, all of which, he alleges, was untrue. After he had filed his answer, his wife begged him to forgive her and to return and live with her, and he finally forgave her.

On May 12, 1902, she again brought suit for separation, charging him with drunkenness and cruelty and made many other allegations against him, which, he claims, were unfounded. He says she again repented and besought him to forgive her, which he finally did, under her promise that she would mend her habits. He says that she has plunged him into heavy debt by her extravagance, and thereby caused him mental suffering and loss of reputation in the community. He claims that her conduct has been reprehensible in that she has since their marriage frequented disreputable resorts.
